[About this Course]

This interactive course is designed for anyone who is interested in beginning, or is already conducting, a research project which incorporates qualitative methods (interviews, focus group discussions, surveys, etc.).

Sessions are tailored to the specific interests and needs of the participants. Prior to the session, participants must submit information related to their research goals/questions, methods and data collected (if any). Sessions will be modified to help the participants with practical feedback and advice.

This is a workshop based course limited to two participants per session; participants must select the number of sessions and they dates they would like to join.

All sessions will be conducted in English. However, the faculty is not available for proofreading or correcting participant papers or presentations outside of the course.

Any TMDU Graduate Student or Faculty Member is welcome to join!
