[About this Course]

This interactive course is designed for anyone who is currently conducting, or interested in starting, a research project which incorporates qualitative methods (interviews, surveys, etc.)

This is a workshop based course limited to two participants per session; participants must select the number of sessions and they dates they would like to join.

Sessions are tailored to the specific interests and needs of the participants. Prior to the session, participants must complete a handout detailing their research goals/questions, methods and data collected (if any), and theoretical approach. Sessions will be modified to help the participants with practical feedback and advice.

All sessions will be conducted in English. However, the faculty is not available for proofreading or correcting participant papers or presentations outside of the course.

Any TMDU Graduate Student or Faculty Member is welcome to join!

[Available Sessions]

Sessions meet on Wednesdays from 13:00-14:30 on the following days:

April 17; May 22; May 29; June 5; June 12; June 19; June 26; July 10; July 17; July 24

- ✧ Applications are first come first served
